35 U.S.C. § 112 Rejection

Claims 1-38 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, first paragraph.

Claims 1-38 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph.

35 U.S.C. § 103 Rejection

Claims 1, 5, 12, 16-17, 20, 24-25, 29, 33-34 and 37 stand rejected under 35 U.S.C. §103(a) as being unpatentable over Banerjee, et al., U.S. Patent No. 6,292,181 (“Banerjee”) in view of Lehman, et al., U.S. Patent No. 6,292,186 (“Lehman”).

Claim 1, as amended, recites

A system comprising:

a portable device coupled with a plurality of access devices, the portable device having a switch to select an access device from the plurality of access devices to be emulated at the portable device when the portable device is within a wireless communication range of one or more of the plurality of access devices, an embedded system to emulate the access device selected from the plurality access devices, the emulating of the selected access device including emulating data as displayed on the access device, a storage system to store the emulated data; and the selected access device having a wireless connection system to establish a wireless connection with the portable device, and communicate data to be emulated to the portable device.

(emphasis added)

Banerjee discloses a “mobile interface device receiving input from a stylus . . . to remotely control application programs running on a host computer. An embodiment of such an interface device includes a pen-based graphical interface which communicates with an operating system on the host computer. In that embodiment, the operating system on the host computer has handwriting recognition capability.” (Abstract; emphasis provided). Banerjee merely discloses handwriting recognition capability that is used to receive inputs from a stylus via a pen-based graphical interface.

Lehman discloses a “universal information appliance (UIA) such as can be embodied by a personal digital assistant (PDA) can receive an application written in a new ‘MoDAL’ language, parse the application to divide it into binary-formatted GUI elements, and then dynamically render a GUI interface on the display of the UIA based on the GUI elements parsed out of the application.” (Abstract; emphasis added).

In contrast, claim 1, as amended, in pertinent part, recites “select an access device from the plurality of access devices to be emulated at the portable device when the portable device is within a wireless communication range of one or more of the plurality of access devices, an embedded system to emulate the access device selected from the plurality access devices, the emulating of the selected access device including emulating data as displayed on the access device” (emphasis added). Banerjee and Lehman, neither individually nor when combined, teach or reasonably suggest the elements of claim 1.

Lehman does not satisfy the deficiencies of Banerjee as, for example, neither reference teaches or discloses selecting an access device and emulating the selected access device via a portable device as recited by claim 1. Accordingly, Applicants respectfully request the withdrawal of the rejection of claim 1 and its dependent claims.

Claims 20 and 29 include limitations similar to those of claim 1. Accordingly, Applicants respectfully request the withdrawal of the rejection of claims 20 and 29 and their dependent claims.

Claims 2-4, 13-15, 21-23 and 30-32 stand rejected under 35 U.S.C. §103(a) as being unpatentable over Banerjee in view of Lehman and further in view of web article on “Remote Display Control for Pocket PC” dated 03-May 2001 (“CERDisp”).

Claims 11, 28 and 38 stand rejected under 35 U.S.C. §103(a) as being unpatentable over Banerjee in view of Lehman and further in view of Doreen Yining Cheng, U.S. Patent Publication No. 2002/0078161 (Cheng”).

Claims 11, 28 and 38 stand rejected under 35 U.S.C. §103(a) as being unpatentable over Banerjee in view of Lehman and further in view of Doreen Yining Cheng, U.S. Patent Publication No. 2002/0078161 (Cheng”).

Claims 7, 8, 9, 18, 19, 26 and 35 stand rejected under 35 U.S.C. §103(a) as being unpatentable over Banerjee in view of Lehman and further in view “winamp.com, Winamp 2.05, Nov. 15, 1998” retrieved from <http://web.archive.org> for site <http://www.winamp.com> on March 31, 2005 (“Winamp 2.05”).

Claims 10, 27 and 36 stand rejected under 35 U.S.C. §103(a) as being unpatentable over Banerjee in view of Lehman and further in view Winamp 2.05, further in view of Harold Aaron Ludtke, U.S. Patent No 6,233,611 (“Ludtke”).

Claims 5-8, 11-19, 22-24, 28, 31-33 and 37-38 have been cancelled without prejudice.

Claims 2-4, 9-10, 21, 25-27, 30 and 34-36 depend from one of independent claims 1, 20 and 29 and thus include all the limitations of their base claim. Accordingly, Applicants respectfully request the withdrawal of the rejection of claims 2-4, 9-10, 21, 25-27, 30 and 34-36.

Conclusion

In light of the foregoing, reconsideration and allowance of the claims is hereby earnestly requested.
